The Fifth Quarter was the prize awarded to the winner of the popular pastime "Shooting for the Beef". It was the most desirable portion of a prized steer. This occurred in our history during the 1800's.

Our dining rooms are named in honor of Moss Bucket, a popular sports-writer for the Boones Lick Missouri News. His sports column was instrumental in popularizing the event.

Natty Bumpo, a character of James Fenimore Cooper, was a great devotee of the Fifth Quarter Beef Shoot. In his honor, we created our Natty Bumpo Room. It reflects his colorful image. Natty was known to wager on the outcome of many a Beef Shoot.

The Fifth Quarter Beef Shoot era was a time of free spirit when people would gather at this sporting event and then afterward savor the spoils of victory or defeat with the finest of Beef and Likker. It is with this spirit of congeniality we offer you the
